1968 COLLEGE FOOTBALL RULES CHANGES

By Ellwood A. Geiges
Member-at-Large, NCAA Football Rules Committee
Assistant to Commissioner, Eastern College Athletic Conference

Probably the most publicized change made in 1968 in the collegiate football rules is the return to the 1966 regulations governing scrimmage kicks, which permits the release of interior offensive linemen immediately upon the snap of the ball to cover such kicks downfield. In 1967 these linemen had been restrained on the line until the ball was kicked.

There is quite a radical revision for 1968 which involves the basic scrimmage formation and the eligibility of forward pass receivers insofar as numbering of players is concerned. Briefly, these are the new requirements:

1. On a scrimmage down there must be at least seven players on the offensive scrimmage line, of which at least five must be numbered 50 through 79.

2. Only the players on each end of the scrimmage line are eligible receivers, and they must wear numbers other than 50 through 79 in order to be eligible. There can never be more than two players on the line who are eligible receivers, but there can be one, or none, depending on their numbers and where they are positioned.

3. Any player who is legally in the backfield is an eligible receiver only if he is wearing a number other than 50 through 79.

There are three changes which will be obvious to spectators and also affect coaching procedures.

1. On a kick any player who makes a signal for a fair catch, and does not touch the ball, may not block an opponent during that down. Infraction of this rule draws a 15-yard penalty from the spot of the foul. The restriction is designed to eliminate the practice of signalling for a fair catch, backing off, and then blocking a player of the kicking team who is attempting to down the ball.

2. The so-called "sucker shift" has been curtailed by re-enforcing the false start rule. The change prohibits an offensive lineman between the snapper and the player on the end of the line from moving his hand(s), or making any quick movement, after having placed a hand or hands on or near the ground. Such action results in a penalty against the offensive team. However, players in such a position may, without penalty, be recalled to a huddle or move to "protect" themselves if a defensive player charges into the neutral zone before the snap.

3. The rule on "crack-back blocks" or legalized clipping in the clipping area has been amended. Players who are stationed five or more yards outside of the clipping area*, or who are in motion toward the ball outside this area at the time of the snap, are not permitted to clip anywhere.

There are also these three changes which deal with "time-out" situations:

1. The length of a free time-out shall be one minute and 30 seconds instead of two minutes.

2. During this free time-out one player may confer with the coaching staff at the team area. This is a liberalization from one player and one coach.

3. Time-out shall be taken by the referee whenever Team A is awarded a first down. This allows the linesman's chains to be moved without consuming game time for such activity.

Other minor changes liberalize field marking by allowing a solid border around the field five feet in width to define the area from which all non-players are restricted. The definition of illegal equipment has been revised as it relates to face mask construction and protective covering.

* During a scrimmage down clipping is not prohibited inside the rectangular area centered on the middle lineman of the offensive formation and extending four yards laterally in each direction and three yards longitudinally in each direction.

TABLE OF CONTENTS

TODAY'S GAME

Long-time rivals Bridgeport and Hofstra will meet for the 16th time tonight, but only the second time at John F. Kennedy Memorial Stadium. Hofstra leads the series between the two schools, 11-2-2, but Bridgeport won the only previous meeting at JFK, 21-7, two years ago.

The home team has always done well in this rivalry. The Flying Dutchmen have scored thumping one-sided victories at their Hempstead, N.Y. stadium while the games in Bridgeport have always been close with the Purple Knights right on contention, winning in 1966 and registering a stunning tie in 1960.

Last year, it was all Jim Thorpe (and that's the correct name) in the Hofstra-Bridgeport game as Thorpe scored 29 points in a 41-0 victory. His 79-yard punt return for a touchdown got the Dutchmen going after the Knights had driven 93 yards without scoring.

There should be a number of interesting individual battles tonight. The game will match Hofstra's highly-touted halfback Wandy Williams against UB's Darrick Warner, the most effective runner at the school in ten years. Another duel will be between ends Bob Harrison of the Knights and Bill Roca of the Dutchmen, both of whom have caught 25 passes this season. Quarterbacks in the spotlight will be Skip Rochette, who should break the UB passing record tonight, and Hofstra's Bill Kaminsky.

This is Homecoming and the UB athletic department, headed by Dr. Herbert E. Glines, athletic director, and Fran Poisson, assistant to the athletic director, welcomes all grads back and hopes they enjoy the game and festivities.

UB TOUCHDOWN — Tailback Darrick Warner scores the lone Bridgeport touchdown on a four-yard run around right end in the fourth quarter. Fullback Bob Riggio (31) supplied a perfect block on Southern Connecticut's Dan Lauria (50) and Tom Bruni (1). The other UB player is wingback Terry Spraker (10) who has taken SCSC's Jerry McEneaney (40) out of the play.

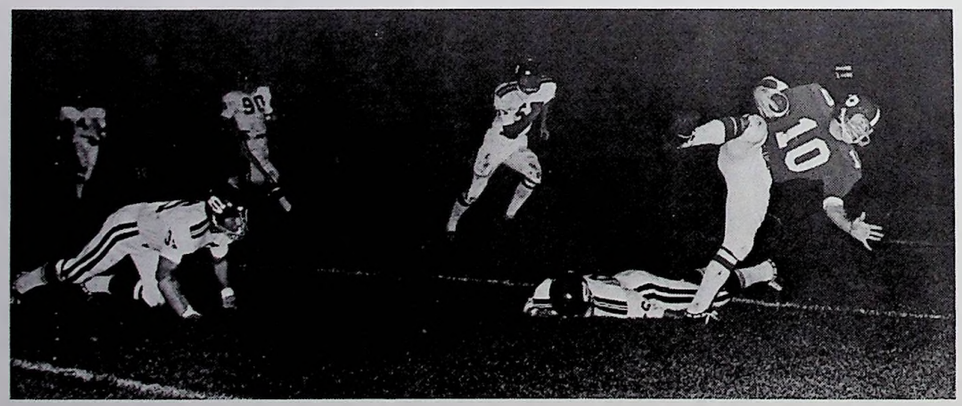
FULLBACK POWER — Bob Riggio shows his running form as he powers up the middle on one of his key gains. Jerry McEneaney (40) tries to shoulder tackle him. On the ground is wingback Phil Johnson (28) while in the background are SCSC's Sal Passamano (95) and UB's Allen Frazier (78).



. . . AND AWAY WE GO — Wingback Terry Spraker (10) seems ready to take off after catching a pass from Skip Rochette. He couldn't get going, however, and was hauled down after a ten-yard gain.

THE PURPLE KNIGHTS

Quarterback Skip Rochette can break the University of Bridgeport single-season passing tonight. All Rochette needs is six yards to crack the school mark of 750 yards in a season set by the late John Corr in 1965.

Rochette, only a junior, has completed 60 to 110 aerials for 744 yards. Despite throwing only seven passes and of which five were completed, the Pointe Claire, Que. youngster played one of his best games last week in the 20-3 victory over Montclair State and received the highest offensive rating in the film evaluations.

Darrick Warner, the junior tailback, made the ECAC All-East team this week for his workhorse performance against Montclair. Warner carried 39 times for 121 yards and scored two touchdowns. He has now gained 387 yards rushing this season and has tallied a team-leading 30 points. His statistics are the best by a Bridgeport back in ten years.

The team's tri-captains have turned in a series of outstanding performances. They are fullback Bob Riggio, monster back Jim Quinn and safety Pete Pelissier.

Riggio gained 66 yards in 17 carries in the Montclair game and scored a touchdown. His crisp blocking also helped spring Warner loose.

Quinn made key tackles to thwart the only real Montclair scoring threat and then combined with Ron Tull to stop the Indians in a fourth down and one to go gamble from their own 41-yard line. He later made an interception. Pelissier intercepted two passes to run his season's total to four and his career figure to 15.

THE FLYING DUTCHMEN

Hofstra is a fast-improving team which may just be ready to explode here tonight. For the first time in three weeks, the Flying Dutchmen are almost at full strength.

Hofstra's record is 2-3 with wins over Gettysburg, 26-10; and Albion, 34-14; and losses to Delaware, 35-0; Lafayette, 7-0; and Temple, 20-12. The team competes in the strong Middle Atlantic Conference where its record is now 1-3.

Last Saturday night's Hofstra-Temple game was reported to be one of the fiercest defensive battles ever seen in MAC competition. Temple coaches said after the game they thought it was Hofstra's best game of the year. Temple also said the Flying Dutchmen hit harder than the team's previous four opponents, Boston University, Rhode Island, Bucknell or Wayne State.

The player to watch tonight is Wandy Williams, a brilliant halfback who has had the pro scouts following him for three years. Williams was one of the finest scholastic athletics ever to come out of Long Island. He first attended to Kansas where he was compared favorably to Gale Sayers, now of the Chicago Bears. But he transferred after his first year.

Williams has been hampered by a pulled hamstring muscle, but he is expected to be ready to go against UB. His 81-yard run with a pass was stopped just short of the goal-line with ten seconds remaining against Temple. A few yards more and Hofstra might have had a chance to tie the game with a two-point conversion.

The Dutchmen's other running backs are halfback Sal Giagante and fullback Bill Hanlon. It has been reported that Jim Thorpe, who scored 29 points against UB last season, has been suspended from the squad.

Quarterback has been a problem spot for Coach Howdy Myers' team as well it might be with the graduation of the sensational Don Gault, who passed for 5,149 yards and 39 touchdowns during his career. Bill Kaminsky, a transfer student, has the job of trying to fill Gault's shoes.

Kaminsky has some fine pass, g targets, headed by Williams and end Bill Roca, a sophomore who was listed among the top 20 pass-catchers in the nation a few weeks ago.

On defense, Hofstra' standout is safety Joe Hunter, a senior who is considered to be as good as Mike D'Amato (now with the New York Jets).

There are six Connecticut residents on the Hofstra roster, headed by three-year starter Ron Dobelstein of Trumbull. Dobelstein, a senior, has been switched to linebacker after playing tackle for two years.

The other Nutmeg Staters are linebacker John Dobson of Darien, center Ralph Palma of Orange, tackle Tom Malanowski of Stamford, guard John Pringle of Columbia and halfback Bob Scaringe of New Britain.

This is Howdy Myers' 19th year at the helm of the Hempstead, N.Y. team. His overall coaching record is 133-64-6, including four years in a similar capacity at Johns Hopkins.

A LOOK AT HOFSTRA

A private, nonsectarian and coeducational university, Hofstra is located on Long Island in suburban Hempstead, 25 miles east of Manhattan. Total enrollment is over 12,000 students, some 5,500 of them full-time undergraduates, another 2,000 part-time undergraduates, and the others graduate students. They come from many parts of this country and from abroad.

The faculty numbers 715 members, 368 of whom are full-time. The part-time faculty is drawn from leaders of business, industry and the professions. At least half the full-time members hold doctoral or terminal degrees, as do many of those who teach part-time.

Principle divisions of the University are the Hofstra College of Liberal Arts and Sciences; School of Business; School of Education; the innovational New College of Hofstra where students may earn their Bachelor's degree in three years, and University College, designed to service primarily the adult, part-time student.

Hofstra, which awards Master's and Doctoral degrees as well as Bachelor's, is dedicated to the liberal arts and sciences as basic to all its programs of study. Students must meet the requirement of a broad foundation in the humanities, natural and social sciences before specializing in any of the many fields of study offered.

The school was founded in 1935 to meet expanding local need for first-rate higher education. Funds and campus — a 12-acre estate — were provided in the will of Mrs. William S. Hofstra in memory of her husband, a lumber magnate of Dutch descent. The original class numbered 159 full-time students, with 19 faculty.

Today, there are 40 buildings on the 194-acre main Hofstra campus. While the University has an unbroken record of growth, the present decade is witnessing the greatest expansion. This has already produced an award-winning library, a new Student Center, the first six residence towers, a University Club and many improvements elsewhere on campus. Soon to be constructed are a Life Sciences complex, a Law School (1970), and a multimillion dollar Physical Fitness and Health Science Center. The latter will encompass gymnasia, swimming, skating and extensive research facilities. Not only will it substantially supplement the present physical education plant but, more important, will serve as a prototype for other colleges and universities throughout the nation.

COLLEGE FOOTBALL CENTENNIAL CELEBRATION

The four paintings on page 15 were commissioned by the Chevrolet Motor Division to help commemorate the 1969 Centennial of college football.

The original paintings are spectacular — these black and white photos don't do them justice. They are being offered in four colors, suitable for framing, via an article in the September issue of READERS DIGEST. The size of each of the litographed reproductions is 18 by 24 inches, the price is $3. Just fill in the order blank and send a check or money order.

The following stories also trace the history of college football.

"THE FIRST GAME"

A crowd of 300 bewildered spectators gathered at Rutgers College Field, New Brunswick, N.J., to see the first inter-collegiate football game. The rough and tumble meeting between Rutgers and Princeton was a far cry from the modern game, but it had a semblance of the crowd atmosphere that gives college football the extra something it enjoys today. There was no stadium then to hold the fans. The crowd perched on fence rails around the field's periphery and raised its battle cries in keeping with the tempo of play.

Each team consisted of 25 players. Rutgers wore red turbans, but mostly the athletes simply removed their jackets and stormed into one another. The ball was kicked down the field; never carried. Points were scored by kicking or butting the ball between goalposts set twenty-five feet apart at each end of the field. The first team to score six goals won the game. By the 1890's, intercollegiate football was played along the lines of Rugby, where the ball is carried. Teams were limited to 11 players and touchdowns could be made in lieu of field goals.

Rutgers won the first game 6 to 4 and college football was born.

"KNUTE ROCKNE — THE COACH"

The era of the coach became firmly established in the 1920's and 1930's with greats like Notre Dame's Knute Rockne achieving fame for themselves and the teams they led. Football had evolved into a game of pre-planned strategies, executed by quick-thinking young men who had been trained to perfection by their coach. By Rockne's time, football fans were attributing the success or failure of teams to the ability of the coaches.

A coach's ability was not always limited to his technical skill, for men like Rockne gained supreme effort from their players with words of inspiration in locker room gatherings. The leadership qualities of many successful players are traced to the endless contributions of our collegiate coaches.

"HOWELL TO HUTSON — THE PASSING GAME"

Into the era of the 1930's swept a new kind of gridiron hero — the specialist. It might be a Sam Baugh at TCU, the purest of passers, an Erny Pinckert at USC, the rowdiest of blockers, a Tom Harmon at Michigan, the most dazzling of runners, or a Don Hutson at Alabama, first of the magnificent receivers.

Don Hutson's miracle catches of Dixie Howell's passes heralded the arrival of a new era in football. The sophisticated passing game made football into a full field of action with spectacular changes forthcoming in offensive and defensive formations. Out of it all has come and All American stars who keep spectators poised for imminent action.

"O.J. RUNS FOR DAYLIGHT"

It is the day of the biggest game of 1967 with USC meeting UCLA before 92,000 and millions more watching on national television. It is almost too much to bear. With impossible poise and courage these two magnificent teams have battled one another, and then in the fourth quarter UCLA moves ahead 20 to 14. Suddenly though it's O.J. Simpson with lightning speed breaking through a hole. He breaks one tackle. Breaks another, and streaks away to the winning touchdown. He is gone and so is the valiant effort of the great UCLA team.

All that college football had ever been, and all that it might ever be, seemed somehow to be incorporated into that frenzied moment. Two splendid teams, after all, had played the great game they were supposed to play. And the super-modern athlete — big, fast, shifty, durable O.J. Simpson — had been the man to win it.

VERITIES ARE STILL ETERNAL

by ROBERT J. KANE

Director of Athletics / Cornell University

I DON'T WISH to take advantage of the gracious loan of this space by masquerading as the kindly old philosopher, or as any kind of philosopher, but I am impelled to offer my observation on the way things are on our campus these days. There has been a genuine note of alarm sounded in your conversations and correspondence with me lately and I beg the privilege to respond. Now, I do look upon myself as somewhat more than a casual observer and I am convinced there is no need for alarm. Thank goodness for your interest, though. That we need.

In my view the boys and girls on our campus today, generally speaking, are the same kind of stock that was here in your day and mine. We do have the "way-out" mavericks who are really not mavericks at all because they are actually more intrenched in conformity than the others. They dress alike, slouch alike, are unkempt alike. They have achieved one thing that I can understand about their antics and that is they have captured your attention and they desperately want that. They mean to shock, maybe even to horrify. They are carrying on their own little war with us. But remember they are the few, the 5-6% perhaps, of our population. In different dress certainly and with a different approach perhaps, but didn't we have people like that here in our day?

I confess, I don't know this breed, but I see them around. I know the others. And they are lovely people. I know the athletes best. They do not change. They are bright, fastidious, friendly, mannerly — same as when you were here.

My appraisal has to be one-dimensional because I do not know these successors to the bohemians of the '30's, my era. All I know is that some of those bohemians are the capitalists of the '60's. We must resist putting all of today's supposed defiant ones in the same basket . . . Some are indeed at odds with the universe. Some do the bit merely for kicks.

I was in Tony's barbershop on College Avenue shortly after Christmas recess and an undergraduate came in who obviously was a favorite with the resident barbers. They exchanged laughing pleasantries with him. Herewith the colloquy between Joe, Tony's son, who mans chair number three, and the engaging young man:

"What did your old man say when you got home minus the beard and with a brush cut?"

"Figure that guy out if you can," responded the boy good naturedly, "he gave me strict orders to get a haircut and a clean shave or not to come home at Christmas. I arrived and he took one look at me and said, 'grow 'em back.' You looked better before. I can see you too well now."

The boy's bubbling personality does not fit the pattern of the defiant, leather-jacketed hood we like to ascribe to the bearded, stringy-haired ones. Chances are he will be horrified at whatever mode of expression his brothers of the mid-'90's are using then to scandalize.

A former member of the Cornell faculty of Arts & Sciences (1922 to 1938), the late Prof. William C. DeVane, made some eloquent observations on his 25-years' experience as Dean of Yale University, upon his retirement in March of 1965. "Our students and our young faculty are lacking in gaiety these days," he said. "The young people are so serious and they go around in those awful clothes to show the democratization of everything. You see girls on campus in dungarees and jackets and their hair mussed up, trying to look as dirty as possible. You want to grab them and say, 'You are supposed to be charming.' Seems to me we had more fun in my day, even in graduate school."

Prof. DeVane did not mean to describe everybody at Yale that way, I am certain, nor their dates. It's just that he was as chauvinistic about his alma mater as we are about Cornell. We are upset so we paint with a wide brush. We want everyone of us to be in the classic mold. And that is exactly the message the mutineers are transmitting, in their picaresque style: Shove it, squares.

But don't worry. The verities are still eternal. I wish you could have attended the postseason football banquet to see our varsity squad. What a handsome, wholesome bunch of young bucks. Neatly attired, having fun.

I am proud of our athletes. They make us look good, at home and abroad. But all our proud ones are not athletes. For every mindless one who slams the door in my face as I go in and out of Teagle Hall every day there are five courtly young men who patiently hold the door and speak graciously to the gray haired old guy; for every slovenly one there are nine neat, clean ones; for every wild driver who scares you half to death there are scores of cautious ones, and among them the kind who will stop and pull you out of a snowbank as two fine boys did for me recently, hurrying on gaily, not waiting for my thanks — their helping hand had already made them late for their nine o'clock class.

Did you know that Cornell boys and girls spend hundreds of their precious hours each year tutoring underprivileged kids in Ithaca? And did you read about the students from Watermargin and CURW (Cornell United Religious Work) who pitched in and gave three days of the weekend of February 10-12 to clean, patch and paint an old abandoned house on Lake Avenue to prepare it for a destitute family of seven, a mother and her six children who were burned out of their home on Madison Street a few days before? A picture in the Ithaca Journal showed that two or three of these charitable people had longish hair. One had a beard somewhat resembling Ezra Cornell's.
